CLA ANNUAL REPORT 2019-2020

Section I:

GOALS

The College's goals for AY 2019-2020 are listed below with the current status of each. These goals are excerpted from the College's 2015-2020 Strategic Plan, which intentionally aligned closely with the University's Strategic Plan at the time. Given the lack of a clear Strategic Plan for the university we decided to extend the CLA strategic plan one more year and will use this as our guide over the current fiscal year. CLA had a highly successful year amidst budgetary challenges and the COVID-19 pandemic which led to adaptations for remote work, teaching, and learning in mid-March, 2020.

GOAL 1: Advance student success through recruitment and retention of prepared students at the undergraduate and graduate levels

A. Enhance Undergraduate Student Success Initiatives.

We have continued the expansion, evaluation, and improvement of CLA First! and SophoMORE (See Appendix 1 for details). Key initiatives and successes of these programs this year are:

- The overall retention rate for first-time, full-time freshmen students into their sophomore year has ranged from 75 to 80% in the most recent years. The CLA First! students in the 2019-2020 cohort are being retained at a higher impressive rate of 86%, despite the Covid-19 pandemic.
- The four-year graduation rate of our student success groups continues to be high. For CLA First!, the rates are at 46% for the 2016-17 cohort, and 40% for the 2015-16 cohort. CLA SophoMORE four-year graduation rates are 76% for the 2017-18 cohort, and 68% for the 2016-17 cohort. Both retention and graduation rates are indicative that CLA First! students who remain into their sophomore year are retained and then graduate at higher averages than students who are not in the program. By comparison, the four-year graduation rate for the overall CLA student population has ranged between 12% - 26% over the past several years; a five-year graduation that has ranged from 30% - 41%, and a six-year graduation rate from 36% - 46%.
- The CLA First! and SophoMORE student success programs were not deterred by the challenges posed due to the recent move from a centrally located office (formerly off the catwalk connector in Wheatley Hall) to the 4th floor of Wheatley. The programs continued their outreach and creative promotion; students still made use of drop-in advising, peer mentor office hours, and stopped in to simply say hello.

- Co-curricular programming, called Start Smart sessions, were offered regularly, with a focus on introducing campus resources and academic skills, as well as providing social opportunities for community building. CLA First! continued to hold robust workshops and sessions on Zoom during the shift to remote programming due to Covid-19. Topics were revised in order to provide timely and relevant support. Existing workshops and resources across campus, such as Academic Support Programs' Becoming an Online Student, were promoted. In addition, we held a virtual Alumni Panel session featuring seven recent graduates of the University who completed the CLA First! program.
- The SophoMORE program continued to partner with Career Services and University Advancement to offer job shadowing opportunities to students. Expanding offerings to 56 students divided into two sections, the program developed and delivered a two-part workshop. The workshop was aimed at helping students research potential job shadow placements and conduct professional outreach to set up the job shadow.

B. Continue improvement of departmental advising systems for undergraduates

We continued to provide academic advising to all CLA students with declared majors regardless of how long they had attended the University or the number of credits they had accrued. Details of the activities of the CLA Advising Office are in Appendix 2. Key initiatives of our Advising Program this year are listed below:

- Our advising office focused on continuity of service, and offered professional, developmental advising to all declared CLA majors despite severe staff reductions (we ended AY 2018-19 with eleven advisors; we had three fewer advisors in fall 2019 and four fewer advisors in spring 2020). This continuity of service included: consistent, personalized communication to students around deadlines; intensive, proactive advising; outreach regarding early alerts; and monitoring of progress both during and at the end of each semester.
- In AY 2019-2020 the CLA Advising Office conducted 7,063 advising meetings with 3,258 individual students. The number of meetings was on par with previous years. However, fewer students were served when compared to 2018-19.
- The CLA Advising Office offered increased availability to students by holding drop-ins at high-need times, such as the Add-Drop period and the Pass/Fail/Withdrawal deadline period. Drop-ins were facilitated this year, as unlike previous years, all advisors were located on the same floor. The data in Appendix 5 shows that the number of students availing of drop-in appointments increased dramatically compared to previous years. Despite the reduced number of advisors, the office handled this surge of appointments during critical times efficiently and admirably.
- International students receive the same advising services as domestic students. In addition, this year the CLA Advising Office collaborated with the Office of International Students and Scholar Services (ISSS) to complete the documents international students are required to submit when requesting program extensions, reduced course loads, and Optional Practical Training after graduation.

- University operations became remote during peak pre-registration period in March 2020. Advisors moved quickly to contact all students who had appointments and held them via email, telephone, and instant messaging the first week. Appointments were held primarily on Zoom after that. The office assured continuity of service to all students and did not reschedule or cancel appointments because of the pandemic. Throughout the spring semester, advisors counseled students through changing policies, continuously developing procedures, and uncertain projections. Due to the concerns about the pandemic and the evolving policy and procedure changes, the amount of email correspondence and number of appointments increased.
- The advising office is in the third year of surveying the learning outcomes of advising appointments. Despite the challenges of this year, the survey results reflected the same top advising gains as previous years, namely, an increased understanding of options and degree requirements in the student population we serve. In spring 2020, a large number of students said that they would choose to partake in remote advising again. In addition, the number of students served in the spring was greater than in any preceding spring—with far fewer advisors. In conclusion, the office will likely continue to offer remote advising options when the University returns to campus.
- The impact of reduced staffing in our advising office—especially during a year with a public health crisis—cannot be overstated. The following initiatives had to be suspended this past year because of understaffing: Academic Improvement and Resources Committee (AIR), monthly intra-departmental professional development meetings, our two regular annual office retreats, and the CLA Department Liaison Program. We hope that this will be corrected so that we may resume much of what we had previously achieved in the realm of advising.

C. Enhancing the Pre-Law Advising program in collaboration with Career Services and University Advising CLA collaborated with the Office of Career Services and Internships (OCSI) and the University Advising Center (UAC) to continue to build a pre-law advising program with a dedicated OCSI career specialist and a dedicated UAC advisor.

- Outreach: An average of 66 students were active on the Pre-Law listserv during the 2019-2020 academic year. These students received tailored emails regarding events, resources, internships, and scholarship opportunities. Pre-Law advisors continued to speak with prospective, accepted, and current students who are interested in the 3+3 program between UMass Boston and the University of Massachusetts School of Law.
- Experiential Learning: Justice Bridge Legal Center's Volunteer Legal Intern position continues to be a popular choice amongst pre-law students. A 3+3 prospective student secured one of the few undergraduate summer internships available this summer, during the Covid-19 pandemic, with Justice Bridge. During the 2019-2020 academic year, 17 students (including one UMB alumnus) completed an internship with Justice Bridge, a 375% increase over last year.

- New Initiatives: A new program, focused on the versatility of a law degree, was offered to students through a collaboration with New York Law School. This program originally ran at the Northeast Association of Pre-Law Advisors (NAPLA) conference in June and was brought to UMass Boston as a special program in the fall. In addition, the Pre-Law Advisors participated in multiple conversations with Dr. Philip Kretsedemas, Associate Professor of Sociology, to provide ideas and information for the pre-law related grant that he is preparing through the AccessLex Foundation's Diversity Pipeline program.
- Documented Success: Based on the Law School Admission Council reports, 33 UMass Boston students/alumni matriculated into law school this past academic year, a 32% increase over last year. Students/alumni matriculated into the following institutions: Suffolk University Law School, New England Law | Boston, Northeastern University School of Law, UConn School of Law, Benjamin N Cardozo School of Law, Brooklyn Law School, Saint Louis University School of Law, Stetson University College of Law, Texas Southern University, The University of Texas School of Law, University of Hawai'i at Manoa, WM Richardson Law, and University of Minnesota Law School. For the coming academic year, 37 UMass Boston students and alumni applied for admission to 216 law schools for fall 2020

D. Continue to liaise from orientation to graduation with CLA Career Specialists and expand internship and job shadowing opportunities for undergraduates

The College of Liberal Arts collaborated with CLA Career Services Specialists in a sustained and robust manner. Appendix 3 details the various aspects of this collaboration. Highlights include:

- The Office of Career Services and Internships, in collaboration with the College of Liberal Arts, supported by the Mellon grant, offered the very first Careers in Humanities course during the 2019-2020 academic year. This course was offered as part of the High-Impact Humanities curriculum for one credit. During the spring 2020 semester, the COVID-19 pandemic moved this section online. In total, 55 students have finished this course since fall 2019. Student feedback for the course has been consistently positive.
- Career Specialists for the College of Liberal Arts continued to provide a variety of classroom presentations for CLA students, including offering the Don't Cancel That Class program for faculty, when missing a class might be unavoidable, such as when attending a conference. In total, 10 workshops were offered through the Don't Cancel That Class program reaching 191 students.
- The collaboration between the Office of Career Services and Internships and CLA affords students a support system for proactively finding internships. Additionally, the Manager of University Internships has helped build special partnerships with local employers; CLA students have the opportunity to apply for those internships. Applicable partnership internships include the City of Boston, Edward M. Kennedy Institute, Havas Media, Behavioral Health Service Corps, Liberty Mutual, Justice Bridge Legal Center, Mass State House-Governor's Office, and Commercial Real Estate Success Training (CREST).

- CLA students took advantage of the Beacon Student Success Fellowship, which provides financial support to undergraduate and graduate students engaging in summer experiential learning. Although summer learning experiences were largely suspended due to the Covid-19 pandemic, it is worth noting that 31% of the 39 students awarded Beacon Student Success Fellowships were from the College of Liberal Arts. In total 47% of students who have received this fellowship since 2014 have been CLA students.

E. Graduate Initiatives for Recruitment and Retention

- The Dean's Office provided competitive financial support to programs seeking to increase advertising and recruitment activities. This support often was used to fund a graduate student to assist with webpage development, better organization of the recruitment approach, including interactions with applicants prior to and during interviews. Working with the Office of Graduate Studies (OGS), greater visibility was obtained through an expansion of advertising on several social media platforms, improvements in online access to information and tracking of inquiries, and streamlining of the graduate application and review process.
- The Dean's Office continued to provide stipend support to large enrollment TAs after our allocation from the Office of Graduate Studies was reduced from 15.5 large enrollment TAs to 13 for the 19-20 year. This reduction occurred after programs had successfully recruited new cohorts and our support of the needed 2.5 stipends allowed us to uphold commitments to programs and students.
- Graduate Program Directors (GPDs) met monthly to discuss tasks, challenges, and concerns and to brainstorm and engage in problem-solving. All desired to improve communications and mentoring of graduate students, and as a team, developed and implemented approaches to improve communications with students about availability and access to resources to support graduate research and travel, graduate research training, and graduate teaching success. This included having invited presentations from OGS, from the Graduate Student Assembly, and from IT.
- The GPDs worked together to support and advocate for graduate students and faculty on issues relevant to stipends, TA roles and responsibilities, protection of student privacy and confidentiality, training specific to COVID-19 adaptations for remote learning, and strategies to provide support and reduce the impact on students' coursework, research, and progress towards completion during the pandemic period.
- In support of maintaining diversity in our programs and attracting all worthy candidates, the GPDs had extensive discussions about the value and known biases inherent in GRE scores from underrepresented populations. Two programs enacted changes in GRE requirements during the past year, while others are considering providing alternatives during the next recruitment cycle.
- In order to support our graduate students, many GPDs engaged in various workshops or lectures related to best practices in training and mentoring in order to meet the needs of our diverse students. All were active in distributing helpful resources to graduate students to make them aware of additional resources that have become available in relation to COVID-19, racial inequities, and addressing and combatting racism.

GOAL 2: Enriching and expanding academic programs and research, and new interdisciplinary programming at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Develop select undergraduate interdisciplinary programs in areas of demonstrated need and demand.

A. Expanding Academic Programs

Due to the moratorium on the approval of new programs at the University level, our momentum in creating new programs has been hindered. Nevertheless, we have one new program and a queue of requested programs awaiting evaluation and approval. Several of these programs are interdisciplinary in nature.

1. Progress in Undergraduate Programs

- The Sexuality Studies minor was rolled out this year, with a new director appointed to run the program. Housed within the Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Department, it joins the department’s other successful minor in Human Rights.
- Cinema Studies Major: Drawing on contributions from departments across the college—including Anthropology; Art; English; Latin American and Iberian Studies; Modern Languages, Literatures, and Cultures; Sociology; Theatre Arts; and Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies—the minor program in Cinema Studies has been an exemplar of interdisciplinary engagement. The Cinema Studies Major proposal builds on the documented success of the minor and aims to give students the tools that will prepare them for a variety of pathways to desirable and productive careers. The major has been approved by the Dean’s council and awaits the Provost’s approval to move to Phase II.
- Public Policy major: This major would be the first undergraduate major of its kind offered at any university, private or public, in Massachusetts and only the fourth public policy major at any college or university in New England. The proposed undergraduate public policy major allows UMB undergraduate students to draw on the strengths and offerings of nine departments and the John W McCormack School of Policy and Global Studies (MGS). The major has been approved by the Dean’s council and awaits the Provost’s approval to move to Phase II.
- Food Studies minor: This interdisciplinary minor aims to provide a multifaceted understanding of food’s central place in human experience through study of specific histories, ecosystems, and cultures, creating crucial productive bridges between the humanities and science and/or management programs. The minor has been approved through university governance and is awaiting further action from the Provost.

- A transnational Global Cultural Studies major proposed by the Modern Languages, Literatures and Cultures department was approved by the Dean's council in 2018-19 and is still awaiting the permission to move to Phase II.
2. “Smart” expansion of graduate programs in carefully selected niches with high demand and in consonance with the existing availability of faculty resources.

Our newest Graduate Programs, the Masters in Critical Ethnic and Community Studies (CECS; began 2017-2018) and the Ph.D, in Applied Linguistics (began 2018-2019), continued to expand during the 19-20 year. Successful recruitment was seen in both programs with CECS enrolling 6 students for the 2019-2020 year and Applied Linguistics enrolling 10 students.

Following the loosening of a moratorium on new programs, in November 2019, Applied Linguistics was approved to add a new French Licensure Certificate within its Masters in Applied Linguistics. Likewise, the Graduate Certificate in Public History was given the green light in spring 2020 as an addition to the History MA Program. The certificate aims to provide training that supports career development for public history professionals. The Masters in Public Anthropology Program was strongly supported by the external AQUAD Review Team and is awaiting approval to begin and thereby recruit students during the upcoming year for a 21-22 cohort.

In support of expanding programs and providing greater options for their graduate students, new doctoral courses were introduced in the Ph.D. Programs in Sociology, Clinical Psychology, and the Developmental and Brain Sciences. At the Masters level, courses were added in support of the Applied Economics and the Latin and the Classical Humanities MA programs. Likewise, two programs were approved to change admission requirements in support of attracting underrepresented students: the Applied Economics Program dropped the inclusion of the GRE as an application requirement and the doctoral program in Clinical Psychology dropped the GRE specialty exam in Psychology.

B. Enriching Undergraduate Academic Programs (and academic research)

CLA has continued the expansion of undergraduate Academic Programming in the Humanities through the Mellon Grant:

As we have completed the second year of the $515K, three-year grant from the Andrew Mellon Foundation, we have made substantial progress in several areas. Twenty-three new courses were developed employing best practices in student-engaged learning and have all gone through governance. In addition, four of the courses developed in 18-19 were taught in Fall 2019 and eight were taught in Spring 2020. Because of contacts with the National Humanities Center we were able to get help in analyzing student responses to these courses. They are overwhelmingly positive and a large number of students noted they have developed new respect for the humanities and some are even considering adding humanities majors or minors.

The first Careers in Humanities courses were offered as one credit courses during the Fall 2019 semester. Given the dearth of humanities majors in these classes, we are making a special effort this summer to recruit them for the courses to be offered next fall. In addition, several small grants have been given to individual instructors to enable their classes to attend various cultural events in Boston to supplement their curriculum. Obviously, Covid-19 sharply curtailed this in Spring 2020. These mini-grants will continue next year.

We also opened up new space for the “Humanities Incubator” in the library and unfortunately, were forced off campus soon after the grand opening so finishing the development of this space will be an immediate focus once we return to campus. In addition to expanding on successful first-year courses in CLA-First! focused on the city of Boston, the Incubator aims to develop an upper-level curriculum that helps students experience—through site visits, hands-on research, and museum and library partnerships—the dynamic creativity, analytical thinking, and cultural engagement central to the humanities. The Incubator will offer a site for classes as well as seminars, student interchanges, and other activities focused around the humanities. We will be working with the CLA Center for the study of Humanities, Culture, and Society to integrate their activities with this new Incubator. In addition, the grant has enabled enhanced mentoring support for undergraduate research and writing in the humanities. We also successfully hired a Production Manager for the Performing Arts Department (paid for by Mellon in this first year) who has allowed us to begin using the facilities more for community events and interactions with cultural events in Boston. The ultimate goal of the program is to stimulate academic engagement that will increase our undergraduates’ persistence, degree completion, and interest in post-graduate education.

C. Supporting and Expanding Academic Research

1. Support for the leadership and management of scholarly publications

Thirty CLA Faculty served as editors for scholarly journals during the 2019-2020 year. Selected journals included:

- The prestigious Composition Studies journal which was transferred to our English Department from the University of Connecticut. Matthew Brown, Department of English, served as Editor.
- The New England Quarterly, a quarterly journal of New England History and Literature, continues to be managed by the History and English departments.
- Professor Susan Tomlinson of the English Department was senior editor of the prestigious Legacy: A Journal of American Women Writers.
- Professor Lloyd Schwartz of the English Department served as senior editor for New York Arts and contributed reviews of classical music and the arts.

- Professor Heidi Levitt of the Psychology Department served as the editor of Qualitative Psychology, a journal focused on qualitative methodologies in Psychology.
- Professor Maria Brinker of the Philosophy Department served as the editor of Phenomenology and the Cognitive Sciences.

2. Supporting Centers and Institutes

The College of Liberal Arts has ten Centers that are interdisciplinary research organizations that bring faculty and students together from across the university to pursue research, teaching, and service on broad scholarly and social topics. CLA supports these centers through providing course load reductions to many of the Directors and Graduate Research Assistants to two of the newer centers.

- Applied Ethics Center
- Center for Evidence-based Mentoring
- Center for Portuguese Language - Instituto Camões
- Center for the Study of Humanities, Culture, and Society
- Center for World Languages and Cultures
- Consortium on Gender, Security, and Human Rights
- Fiske Center for Archaeological Research
- Labor Resource Center
- The Spanish Resource Center
- The Catherine Frisone Scott Center for Italian Cultural Studies

Below, we highlight the work of three centers:

- The Labor Resource Center provides education through academic degree programs, professional certificates, and labor extension, and conducts research on issues surrounding work, economic and social justice, racial and gender equality, and the labor movement in the United States and around the world. The Labor Resource Center started the year by welcoming Professor Nick Juravich as the Associate Director. A professor in the History department, Nick began working on a Boston Teachers Union Oral History Project to collect oral histories with educators and organizers in Boston whose experiences span the past half century. The LRC and the Department of Economics released a report, The Union Effect in Massachusetts, which explores the impact of unions on the wages of working people and the economy of Massachusetts. The report was part of the Future of Work Research Initiative, funded by the University of Massachusetts President's Office, supporting research on a broad range of issues affecting working people in Massachusetts. The Center also taught hundreds of students, graduated a few, and continued to conduct labor education throughout the state.

- The Ethics Center had a very productive second year. Continuing its focus on the ways in which Artificial Intelligence impacts everyday experience, the Center hosted talks on predictive policing, the moral dilemmas facing geolocation companies, the ethics of autonomous weapons, and workplace automation. The Center also continued to host its philosophy and technology discussion group. This year, the Center was successful in securing funding from the Institute on the Ethics of Emerging Technologies to fund three post doc positions at UMB who will focus on the impact of AI. Finally, Center director Nir Eisikovits was invited as a plenary speaker at the West Point Conference on the Ethics of War and Peace this past fall. He gave a paper on the role of political humiliation in ISIS's ideology and recruitment efforts. Professor Eisikovits and Senior Research Fellow J Hughes were also invited to speak at LongNow Boston on how AI will shape future humans.
- A new Center for Italian Cultural Studies (CICS), generously funded by Catherine Frisone Scott, in memory of John B. Frisone, was inaugurated in December 2019. Preparations for the Center began in 2017, when a group of interdisciplinary Italian Studies faculty members, headed by Professor Vetri Nathan of the MLLC department, envisioned the basic tenets of CICS and organized its first events. Activities in these first two pre-inauguration years included the New England Renaissance Conference in 2017, as well as lectures and student-focused cultural events on topics as diverse as Race and Migration in Contemporary Italy, Italian Renaissance Art, Italian Politics, History, Cinema, and Literature. In Fall 2019, the faculty committee instituted a scholarship for students accepted for faculty-led study abroad courses in Italy. The momentum of the newly created Center slowed slightly in Spring 2020 due to the Covid-19 pandemic. After his initial tenure as Founding Director, Professor Nathan hands over the direction of CICS in Fall 2020 to Professor Lorenzo Buonanno in the Art Department for the next two academic years (2020-2022). Under Professor Buonanno's leadership, the advisory committee plans to offer several virtual events in the coming year.

GOAL 3: Improve learning, teaching and working environment through increasing accessibility, space, faculty development, and appropriate departmental staffing

A. Faculty Development: Teaching

For the last several years, we have supported faculty in their teaching by encouraging our faculty to participate in workshops and specialized training offered through both CIT and the Office of Faculty Development. This has now become common practice for new faculty. We also provide our faculty with support in the form of course load reductions when the faculty serve in roles as CIT and OFD Directors. Over the last several years, we have actively incentivized our faculty to offer large enrollment courses through supporting specific training, providing graduate Teaching Assistants, and providing an accrual system for earned course load reductions. Table 1 below summarizes the last few years of our large enrollment offerings. As shown, CLA now teaches approximately 9000 students/year in large enrollment classes.

Table 1. Large Enrollment (70+ enrollment cap) Offerings and Enrollments

	# of CLA LE sections	Enrollments in LE sections
Fall 15	45	4589
Spr 16	48	4280
Fall 16	49	4550
Spr 17	44	4294
Fall 17	46	4749
Spr 18	45	4494
Fall 18	46	4719
Spr 19	45	4305
Fall 19	50	5060
Spr 20	39	3964

B. Faculty Development – Scholarship

Our college has supported faculty scholarship through the competitively-awarded Dean’s Supplemental Travel and Dean’s Research Funds, and through Discretionary funds. The FSU provides each faculty member with $1000 to support travel. During the 2019-2020 year, Dean’s Supplemental Travel Funds were not offered due to budget constraints. The Dean’s Research Fund, however, made awards of up to $5000/investigator to support research projects conducted by 24 faculty, and 3 CLR’s were also awarded in order to provide time for research engagement. Discretionary funds were used to support speaker series, seminars, and workshops hosted by CLA faculty.

At a more general level, our college supported scholarship by providing grant administration staff to the Psychology, Sociology, and Anthropology departments, graduate stipend support for workers at our newest Centers, administrative support to the CLA Mentoring Center, and the CLA Grant Administrator who serves the other CLA departments. The CLA Grant Administrator assisted faculty and graduate students in finding public and private sources of grant funding for the humanities and the arts, as well as in the submission of applications, and post-award management of external funds.

C. Mentoring

Following deliberations in 2018-19, the mentoring task force headed by Professor Susan Gauss and Associate Dean Pratima Prasad presented their recommendations to the CLA Chairs group in the Fall with the objective of encouraging departments to develop mentoring plans with structures of accountability built into them. As of spring 2020, all 19 departments in CLA have completed their mentoring plans, now posted on the Provost's Faculty Development webpage. The CLA Dean's office is also engaged in conversations with faculty across the college about new mentoring initiatives aimed at supporting minority faculty in the college.

D. Staffing

Due to reduced resources and budget constraints, we have been limited in our efforts to provide much needed staffing support to our departments. The VSIP Program resulted in an arbitrary reduction of staffing levels in the college, which is already under-staffed relative to other campus units. This needs to be remedied in the next fiscal year or it will undermine some of our signature programs including CLA FIRST (which now has no staff support), the Sociology Department (missing their key AA position), the Anthropology Department (unless granted the request to increase a professional staff member to full-time to take over some AA duties since this department is also without an AA), and the Art Department, which has fallen from 1.5 FTE of staff to 0.5.

GOAL 4: Encourage and foster community engaged scholarship and teaching through outreach to the community

A. Community-engaged scholarship and teaching

- Several faculty members in the Anthropology Department were involved in vital community-engaged projects. Tim Sieber continued his deep community work with the Brazilian Worker's Center focused on immigration and worker's rights. Rosalyn Negrón has initiated a new research project with Puerto Rican communities funding by the Environmental Protection Agency to look at post-Hurricane Maria issues. Chris Fung has launched a field research project on Chinese heritage and identity in Aotearoa/New Zealand. Daniela Balanzátegui continued her engaged research with Afro-Ecuadorian community organizations. Stephen Silliman's community-engaged, collaborative and historic and cultural preservation efforts with the Eastern Pequot Tribal Nation received the prestigious Mark E. Mack Community Engagement Award from the Society for Historical Archaeology.
- In the English Department, Matt Davis co-taught a course with a member of 826 Boston, a non-profit youth writing and publishing organization that empowers traditionally underserved students. Jill McDonough continued to develop her partnership with the prison and juvenile detention center.
- In the Psychology Department, Professor Tiffany Donaldson continued her collaborative partnership on the U54 Grant with the Dana Farber Cancer Institute. She was a co-author on a paper that explores interventions to support evidence-based program planning in underserved communities. Devin Atallah is a lead investigator and community organizer/activist in three distinct community-based qualitative research projects that are each grounded in radical coalitions with community members: refugee camps in Palestine; Mapuche Indigenous communities in Chile; and in Black and Brown communities in Boston. Professor Vivian Ciaramitaro continued conducting research and public science outreach at the Living Laboratory, Museum of Science Boston. Zsuzsa Kaldy started a collaboration between The UMass Boston Baby Lab and the Boston Children's Museum.

- Elora Chowdhury of the Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Department participated in several virtual community-engaged events that brought together researchers, legal experts, and labor activists in Bangladesh and the United States as a response to the Covid-19 crisis.

B. Outreach: Networking, Events and Communication of the CLA Brand

- Social Media: In an effort to serve better our students, faculty, and the community, we have three main social media accounts on which we share pertinent news and information about the college. We have a Twitter feed (n=436), a Facebook page (n=625), and an Instagram account (n=947) and we frequently use these platforms to share information such as: open courses; cancelled courses; university and college events; educational articles; community events; research opportunities; and student, faculty, and alumni awards and achievements. Due to the remote operations during the Covid-19 outbreak, our tweets and Facebook posts increased compared to last year (30% increase in tweets and 27% increase in Facebook posts). In Fall 2020, it is our goal to continue to encourage students to follow us on social media so that we can provide them with as much information as possible in the most direct way possible.
- Web: CLA webpages have been updated according to the needs of each department. We continue to encourage our departments to maintain their individual pages with up-to-date information regarding course offerings, scholarships, changes to major and minor requirements, and other information that is necessary for their students. We encourage faculty to periodically check their Faculty pages to make sure their information is also current.
- CLA Undergraduate Research Week: As the campus shut down due to the Covid-19 pandemic, we quickly adapted and restructured our plans for CLA's undergraduate research week, originally scheduled for the last week of April 2020. While research events held by individual departments during the week had to be canceled, we were able to move our signature event, the Undergraduate Research Presentation Showcase, to a virtual modality. This successful endeavor was the result of creative thinking and substantial technological troubleshooting. Despite the unusual circumstances of the semester, our undergraduate students continued to do stellar research, and we had a record number of submissions of student research work. Twenty-six student research presentations from a variety of humanities and social science departments were featured on our web page. Three students in Psychology, History, and Cinema Studies shared the award for Best Research Presentation.

GOAL 5: Seek out Opportunities for Revenue Generation

The CLA Grant Administrator and those working for the Anthropology, Psychology, and Sociology Departments provided pre- and post-award support for the faculty and graduate students in all departments in CLA. Based on reports from these units and from the Office of Sponsored Programs, during the 19-20 annual year, 33 faculty members received grants with the annual budget totaling $3,676,941. Additionally, at least 39 other proposals were submitted. This funding placed CLA in fifth position across colleges with respect to the generation of revenue through external grant funding. Rankings from 1st through 5th were: College of Science and Math, College of Education and Human Development, McCormack Graduate School, School for the Environment, and College of Liberal Arts.

In the table below, the departments generating external funding are shown. As can be seen, during the last 4 years, 5 additional units have newly obtained external funding. We are very pleased to see these new awards and feel that it demonstrates the success of our efforts to provide information about potential funding sources and to support pre-award needs. One newly funded unit ranks among the top contributors: Psychology, the Consortium on Gender, Security, and Human Rights, Anthropology, and Sociology.

Section II:

MAJOR ACHIEVEMENTS

A. CLA Faculty Recruitment

Despite budgetary limitations, CLA has been successful in recruiting faculty with robust and diverse research interests in the social sciences and the humanities. The university budget difficulties resulted in a hiatus in the large number of replacement hires. The following is a summary of the number of TT hires made in the past four academic years:

AY 2016-17: 10 replacement hires

AY 2017-18 :10 replacement hires

AY 2018-19: 5 replacement hires

AY 2019-20: 8 replacement hires

B. CLA Faculty Scholarship

CLA faculty continued robust scholarly production in AY18-19, the last academic year for which AFRs were completed. Our faculty collectively published 18 books, 217 journal articles, 91 book chapters, and 12 edited books. In addition, they produced or completed 342 creative works. Production of journal articles, book chapters, and creative works were on par with previous years. See Appendix 4 for full details.

C. Personnel Milestones

Nine CLA faculty achieved tenure and 1 was hired with tenure. 5 CLA faculty were promoted to Full Professor and 10 NTT faculty were Promoted to Senior Lecturer.

D. CLA Success in Teaching, Research and all Creative Inquiry

As reported in prior sections, CLA programs have excelled in teaching and scholarly activities. Special recognitions in these areas and in the creative arts during the 2019-2020 year included:

- Heidi Levitt of the Department of Psychology received the Chancellor's Award for Distinguished Scholarship. She also received the Distinguished Contributions to Qualitative Inquiry Award from the American Psychological Association.
- Elizabeth Bussiere of the Department of Political Science received the Chancellor's Award for Distinguished Teaching.
- Stephen Silliman of the Anthropology Department received the 2020 Society for Historical Archaeology's Mark E. Mack Community Engagement Award for the Eastern Pequot Archaeological Field School.
- Brandon Miller of the Communication Department received the top paper award from the Human Communication and Technology division in his discipline. Mark Kazemzadeh, also of the Communication Department, received the Best student paper award from NCA's Peace and Conflict Management division.

- The 2020 Beacon Faculty Advisor of the Year award went to Paul Dyson of the English Department.
- Lillian-Yvonne Bertram from the English Department published Travesty Generator, a book of poems that earned major awards plaudits: the 2019 Noemi Press Prize for Poetry; selection as a finalist for the National Poetry Series; and the Anna Rabinowitz Prize, awarded for interdisciplinary work combining poetry and any other art or discipline.
- In what might possibly be a UMB first, Holly Jackson's new book, American Radicals: How Nineteenth-Century Protest Shaped the Nation, was simultaneously released on audiobook.
- Isabel Gomez of the Latin American and Iberian Studies Department won a highly competitive ACLS Fellowship (American Council of Learned Societies)
- Karen Suyemoto of the Psychology Department received the prestigious Fulbright Scholarship.
- City of Boston Mayor Marty Walsh appointed Paul Watanabe and Lorna Rivera to a COVID19 task force. They will review data and provide guidance on addressing imbalances in minority representation among those affected by the coronavirus.
- City of Boston Mayor Marty Walsh appointed Reyes Coll-Tellechea of the Latin American and Iberian Studies Department to the city's reactivated Human Rights Commission.
- The graduate program in clinical psychology achieved ranking in the top 100 U.S. graduate programs in the U.S. News and World Report's 2021 Best Graduate Schools list.
- The Mass Cultural Council awarded UMass Boston English Department instructors Lillian-Yvonne Bertram and Krysten Hill ('13) $15,000 Artist Fellowships for excellence, ingenuity, and diversity in poetry.
- Online guide Best Master's Programs named UMass Boston's online History Master's program as the 6th best online history Master's program in the country.
- Ed Tronick of the Psychology Department was chosen as one of three scientists featured in the first episode of the Netflix docuseries Babies.
- The Andrew Fiske Memorial Center for Archaeological Research received the 2020 Society for Historical Archaeology's Award of Merit which was presented at the annual meeting in early January.

Section III:

STRENGTHS AND WEAKNESSES

A. Strengths

- 19 dedicated Departmental Chairpersons and 14 Graduate Program Directors all of whom are active in their scholarly fields, their classrooms, and in college administration. CLA faculty also perform the lion share of teaching, scholarship, and service across the University.
- The models developed by CLA for various processes—such as AQUAD and NTT resource allocation—are often cited and emulated across the University.
- CLA has taken the lead in a number of important campus initiatives related directly to our strategic goals, including promoting undergraduate research and expanding the opportunities for our students to engage in research activities, expanding study abroad opportunities through summer program offerings, providing increased technical support in communications, grant finding, TA training, teaching LE courses, and the electronic one form.
- As a college, CLA responded with resilience when the Covid-19 pandemic hit. All 19 departments moved their operations swiftly and efficiently to a remote modality, and CLA professors creatively shifted their teaching online.
- Grant-making has increased with respect to the number of units obtaining external funding. It has also grown in the humanities thanks to faculty NEH successes, the Ethics Center, and the Mellon grant for high impact humanities based in experiential and service learning.

B. Weaknesses

- Creative Inquiry: faculty are feeling hamstrung by the inability to innovate in their programs, including adding interdisciplinary minors, new majors, and other programs due to slowdowns in governance and administrative churn.
- College staffing has been a victim of capricious and random VSIP (early retirement incentives). As a result, some departments are still missing core staff they need to function, and luckily the lack of campus access is reducing these pressures significantly.
- The last couple of years of lean times for hiring TT faculty along with resignations and retirements have left some programs with serious needs for replacement faculty.
- Fundraising: the college in collaboration with advancement should be bringing in more gifts of any amount. We hope to be able to continue to expand in this area.

Section IV:

NECHE/NEASC

In the January 20, 2016 Accreditation Notification from NECHE, they suggested that the University “give emphasis” to the points listed below. We address points 1-4 in this section in addition to having presented relevant information throughout this report.

- 1) implementing its strategic plan with emphasis on the development of plans for revenue generation to support the initiatives of the plan, the allocation of resources necessary to accommodate enrollment growth, and the use of data for decision-making;
- 2) assuring that responsibility for departmental administrative service does not fall disproportionately on some segments of the faculty;
- 3) achieving greater efficiency and transparency with respect to transfer credit equivalencies in admissions and advising;
- 4) enhancing support for graduate students;
- 5) addressing the resource challenges of the Healy Library, including space availability, lighting, staffing, and information technology, in light of the University's goal to become a residential campus.

1. Implementing its strategic plan with emphasis on the development of plans for revenue generation to support the initiatives of the plan, the allocation of resources necessary to accommodate enrollment growth, and the use of data for decision-making.

CLA has been very successful in generating revenue from external sources in the social sciences as well as the humanities. As detailed in Section I, the College as a whole has completed the second year of the $515K, three-year grant from the Andrew Mellon Foundation. This grant has helped support curricular programming, staff hiring, as well as undergraduate mentoring.

Individual faculty and departments within CLA have also been quite successful in obtaining external funding. 14 departments, programs, or Centers have grants involving 33 individual faculty as PIs. We are very pleased that during the last 4 years, 5 additional units have been successful in getting funding. We support external funding initiatives through employment of a CLA Grant Administrator who assists departmental faculty and graduate students in identifying funding sources and in the submission, pre-award, and post-award processes. She also serves as back-up in assisting departments when their own Grant Administrator is not available due to vacancy, illness, or heavy load, and assists in training newly hired departmental Grant Administrators.

CLA has a robust, data-driven approach to the staffing of administrative assistants (AAs) per department, administration of course load releases (CLRs), and scheduling. Staff support for departmental AAs is based on a well-designed formula that takes into account the size of a department’s operations, as well as numbers of faculty, majors, minors, and graduate students. In the interests of our budget, we maintain strong oversight and accountability over faculty CLRs. In our scheduling procedures, we address revenue generation by providing direction to each of our nineteen department chairs that assigns the optimal numbers of sections that they should schedule per semester, as well as the targeted enrollment numbers. In addition, we set limits on the maximum number of NTTs/Teaching Fellows to be hired, based on the department's overall enrollment history. We also encourage large section teaching through the provision of TAs to instructors. Finally, revenue generation is addressed through a careful examination of Lab Fees charged on appropriate courses, both graduate and undergraduate.

2. Assuring that responsibility for Departmental Administrative Service does not fall disproportionately on some segments of the faculty.

In the service arena, CLA Faculty are often the ones to voluntarily take the lead, and participate most actively, in university-wide committees and initiatives. Within the college, we encourage departments to distribute service equitably, with the caveat that senior faculty should be shouldering more service than junior faculty. For CLA-wide committees, the Dean's office makes sure to be equitable in allocating service roles. We also offer Associate Professors who have chaired their department a research-intensive semester. Faculty who have established a solid publication record after tenure are encouraged to go up for promotion to Professor, so we can have a larger body of very senior faculty who can chair departments and take the service burden away from Associate and Assistant Professors.

3. Achieving greater efficiency and transparency with respect to transfer credit equivalencies in admissions and advising.

CLA has a clear and transparent set of rules regarding transfer equivalencies for the Registrar to use. In addition, CLA professional advisors are well-informed of these rules, and proactive in communicating them to students that they advise.

4. Enhancing support for graduate students

As described in Section I.E., we maintain a high level of support to our graduate students by providing supplemental stipends in support of graduate students placed as TAs in our large enrollment courses. Also, to both support graduate students and to fill a staff shortage within our CLA First! Program, we assigned 2 advanced graduate assistants to assist in advising the students in that program. The Dean's Office has also made competitive-funding available to programs for the enhancement of advertising and recruitment efforts, and these monies are often used to support graduate students who have improved program websites, information in social media, and other information of relevance to potential applicants and new students. In departments with research grants, it is also common for research funds (direct as well as indirect provided through RTF allocations) to be used to provide stipends, travel funds, and extra funding for graduate students during the summer months. As part of routine supportive communications with graduate students, all CLA graduate students are kept well-informed about and encouraged to apply for internal resources as well as external funding. Their efforts are then assisted by the CLA or departmental grant administrator.

Section V:

UNIT GOALS FOR 2020-21 & RELATIONSHIP TO STRATEGIC PLAN

CLA's goals for next year are directly related to our extended five-year strategic plan as referenced in Section I. We will continue to work on expanding our student retention rates and the percentage of students who graduate in four years through our CLA First!, SophoMORE, and Majors Advising programs. We hope to build on our success in undergraduate research by spreading this to more departments in CLA and involving more of our students. We also hope to move forward with all proposed new programs that are now awaiting approval. Some of these programs will need space to function. Along with these space needs, we would like to develop a technologically "cutting edge" Language Laboratory using accumulated funds generated through Lab Fees. With respect to graduate programs, we will continue our initiatives to increase recruitment and support for graduate students. A key goal will also be to continue to expand revenue generation through more successful grant applications and broader contact with alumni and donors. We also hope to build on our successes in recruiting top-notch faculty hires to the extent allowed by the current budget challenges.

Section VI:

ASPIRATIONAL PEERS

Several years ago, we selected Wayne State University as our aspirational peer because it was a part of the Urban Coalition and is a public urban research university with a social justice mission serving largely minority first generation college students. Wayne State is larger than UMass Boston, has 13 unions, and remains an innovator with student access though the school is largely commuter based in the heart of downtown Detroit. Wayne State has 13 colleges including a School of Medicine, School of Social Work, a Law School, the College of Education and Human Development, College of Fine and Performing Arts, School of Engineering, Illych School of Business, a School of Nursing, College of Pharmacy and Health, School of Informational Sciences, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, and Graduate School. Students come from every state and 60 countries and 48% are minority students.

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS) at Wayne State is used as our aspirational peer as it includes the humanities, social science, physical and life science, and a variety of interdisciplinary programs including public health and environmental studies. When possible in our comparison, we have broken down R&D data from the CLAS at Wayne State to provide data specific to the humanities and social sciences. The Graduate School at Wayne State assures the highly regarded graduate programs and students that there are commensurate services at the graduate level as the undergraduate level. Graduate students are recognized as collaborators, valued resources, peers, and educators: an aspirant goal for UMass Boston on which we have made significant improvements. As shown in Table 3 below, despite the smaller numbers of faculty and graduate students in CLA, we outperform Wayne State in generating external research funds.

CLA First!, Sophomore, and First-Year Initiatives

2019-2020 Annual Report

In completing our 10th year, we continue to learn from each year and have much to reflect on, especially as we adapt to the remote learning environment during the COVID19 pandemic. Our overall aim remains the same as previous years: to provide access to student success programs that enhance the learning environment for all of our CLA students.

Program Activities

As part of the intensive and supportive opportunities available to the cohorts, the following initiatives and resources began or continued to be offered to the group over the academic year.

CLA First! program

Start Smart! series: Our co-curricular programming, called Start Smart sessions, were offered regularly, and focus on introducing campus resources, academic skills, as well as providing social opportunities for community building. This year we collaborated with the Student Affairs Division and held our annual “Super Start” kickoff event on Monday, September 2nd. Holding this event, a week later, in order to connect it to other campus-wide welcome initiatives worked well. We had great attendance and positive feedback from students and our peer mentor team. Throughout the fall and first half of the spring semester we held regularly occurring in-person workshops on a range of topics including: tutoring information; time management and effective use of academic planners; career and resume workshops; major and minor exploration, as well as peer mentor led sessions. We continue to partner with the UMB-UR-BEST program from the Psychology Department, and they presented a workshop “Addressing Procrastination”. In addition, the Office of Student Leadership and Community Engagement’s GROW Peer Facilitators presented on student involvement. We promoted select Start Smart sessions in the fall to all newly-enrolled CLA students. CLA First! continued to support peers through encouraging students to connect via social opportunities within the larger campus community. One example was supporting CLA First! first-year students who were involved in Performing Arts productions by encouraging students to attend these shows in the fall. In the spring, in addition to our regular programming, we also used our office relocation to engage with students by hosting multiple engagement contests and a drop-in party.

In the shift to remote operations, we continued to hold regular workshops, utilizing Zoom. However, we revised topics to provide timely and relevant support given the new circumstances. We also made sure to promote existing workshops and resources across campus to our cohort, including Academic Support Programs’ Becoming an Online Student. We held a virtual Alumni Panel session featuring seven recent graduates of the University who completed the CLA First! program. Recognizing that students may need a break from screen time, or may have other responsibilities that conflict with attendance during virtual zoom sessions – we continue to share resources through our shared drive as well as via email. As we look towards the fall semester, we are processing what worked well, and what needs improvement and we are involving our peer mentor team and students in planning for programming.

Student advising commitment: Academic Advising continues to be a crucial component of the CLA First! program; advising curriculum is embedded in our Start Smart programming. Our aim to promote advising as a regular (not only for pre-registration course advising) and accessible support for students is supported by the number of students who continue to visit our office each semester. We faced a challenge with our centrally located office (formerly off the catwalk connector in Wheatley Hall) being relocated to the 4th floor of Wheatley. With continued outreach and creative promotion, students still made use of drop-in advising, peer mentor office hours, and also continued to stop in to simply say hello.

Peer Mentors co-presented our fall 2019 advising and registration workshops alongside our professional academic advising team. All CLA First! students in the 2019-2020 cohort attended a workshop prior to scheduling a one-on-one advising appointment with their professional advisor, allowing for more time to have in-depth conversations in one-on-one advising meetings. Advisors met with all enrolled CLA First! and SophoMORE students during the fall and spring, and also met with more than half of the continuing students from our programs (many connected with their faculty advisor as well).

We continued to offer drop-in advising and scheduled appointments, and had over 1500 meetings between July 1, 2019 and June 30, 2020. In addition to our online scheduling system that has helped track our appointments and decreased no-shows, our team uses the University's Case Management System (Salesforce) for a variety of helpful functions, including outreach, tracking student success and notes. Advising meetings are on a range of topics, including but not limited to: Early Alert initiative, Satisfactory Academic Progress for financial aid, academic standing, understanding degree requirements, 4-year degree planning, major/minor exploration, career and professional goal setting, as well as leadership development. We participated in University advising campaigns, including late night Residence Hall and campus-wide class registration events.

Peer Mentors: Our dedicated team included senior peer mentors: Yaa Opoku-Agyeman, Hirmine Francois and Estefany Pineda, as well as peer mentors: Eugene Wu, Karen Galdamez, Hayley Bartlett, Julia Medeiros, Layanie Oscar, Dorah Mtekele, Michael Doherty and Slandy Sanon. Peer mentors provided an additional layer of support to first year students, as well as students in our continuation student success program, CLA SophoMORE. Peer mentors regularly held office hours, and encouraged attendance at their weekly office hours. They participated in all aspects (from coordination to presentation) with Start Smart! and social programming. Mentors and professional staff met weekly throughout the fall and spring semesters. Our peer mentors continued to provide exceptional program support remotely throughout the last half of the spring semester. The position for CLA Peer Mentors was advertised for 2020-2021, we had a record number of applicants and are excited for the year ahead.

CLA First! Facebook page; Twitter account; Instagram account and Google shared drive: Even prior to the COVID19 pandemic, we increased our presence on social media. Particularly, our peer mentor team used various interactive features on Instagram aiming to improve engagement, including polling and other options that called on virtual participation. They created social media campaigns, regularly posting on each of our social media accounts, and connecting with social media accounts from other University programs, and student groups. It is extremely important that our students have access to resources electronically, so CLA First! and SophoMORE continues to use a shared Google drive to house materials.

Overall 2019-2020 Student Updates

At the start of the fall semester, 132 students were registered for CLA First! cohort classes.

2019-2020 CLA First! Cohort Overview:

- 115 students successfully completed the cohort classes and will receive First Year Seminar waiver.
- 101 students are registered for classes for fall 2020 as of June 30, 2020. Of those not yet registered for fall 2020 classes; twelve students are actively working with CLA First! academic advisors on registration for fall (in some cases resolving holds that are preventing fall 2020 enrollment).
- Five students did not enroll in spring 2020, two students withdrew from the spring 2020 semester. Six students have indicated to us that they are transferring for fall 2020. One student has indicated they will return in spring 2021. Some students have indicated their reason for withdrawal, taking a semester off, or transferring are directly related to the COVID19 pandemic. Other students had previously indicated their reasons for transferring to include: looking for on-campus housing for four years and seeking a specific academic program that UMass Boston does not offer.
- 62 students were named to the Dean's List in fall 2019; and 73 students in spring 2020.
- Average GPA for fall 2019: 3.23; Average Cumulative GPA (fall 2019 & spring 2020): 3.25

CLA SophoMORE program

Program model and changes: In collaboration with the English department, the SophoMORE program completed a fourth year as an academic course and continued to offer two sections, which included a total of 56 students. The two sections of the Intermediate Seminar, offered in the fall, were taught by Christopher Craig and Sarah Fritz from the English Department. Professor Craig continued in the spring 2020 semester with both sections of the 1-credit SophoMORE course. Fall workshops were conducted most Friday's by Oceana Elia-Hintsa, Academic Advisor for CLA SophoMORE, and other CLA First! staff and Peer Mentors helped in the facilitation of these workshops. In the spring, Oceana and Chris coordinated on the 1-credit course offered Mondays and Fridays at 11. We are grateful for the English Department's collaboration on this program, as we explore models to expand.

Since the majority of students in CLA SophoMORE started as a student in CLA First! we seek to build on what we offer through our first-year efforts. As with previous years, the central focus of the CLA SophoMORE Intermediate Seminar course was to help students talk about and negotiate the tensions that exist in challenges that may arise from pursuing an education and/or finding a job or career. The course introduces the challenges and the workshops were designed to suggest ideas, resources, and tools for how to confront some of the challenges presented. The goal was to introduce students to more complex ideas in their education and personal lives and to encourage them to explore such questions as: "Who am I?," and "What is important to me?" Through reading and writing assignments and co-curricular activities students explored their academic, professional, and personal journeys and goals. Professional writing was highlighted, as students prepared and revised resumes, professional emails, and draft cover letters. Students were also required to reflect on the process of preparing for their job shadows and partake in the job shadow experience. In the spring semester students enrolled in a 1-credit course, where they presented and reflected on their job shadow experiences, further developed presentation skills and cover letter writing, and observed presentations focusing on financial aid planning, writing proficiency writing, career development, and utilizing university resources. Another major element of the 1-credit course was exploring cultural proficiency and leadership skills, which allowed the students to truly explore themselves and what is important to them. The Conflict Resolution Beacon to Beacon program led an inspiring Workshop on cultural proficiency and leadership skills that also introduce the students to elements of mediation and negotiation. We are thankful for the insight that the Beacon to Beacon program brought to the classroom and hope to utilize this program in future years.

Programming efforts: Programming efforts were focused on a holistic approach of the sophomore experience from academic and intellectual to social and cultural aspects of the student experience. Highlighted topics included undergraduate research, internships, preparation for the Writing Proficiency requirement, cultural proficiency, financial aid literacy, networking and interview skills, and more in depth connection with the Office of Career Services and Internships. There was also much emphasis on being a part of a community that can provide support and resources for success. Community emphasis was especially evident during the transition to remote learning. Several of the later spring Workshops were altered to address the concerns, issues, and feelings that students were experiencing as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Job Shadow: As part of the SophoMORE experience, students “shadow” a professional in an area of their career interest. With expanding to offer two sections of the course to 56 students, it was important to explore new ways of helping students to find job shadow opportunities and conduct professional outreach. Oceana developed and delivered a two-part workshop specifically aimed at helping students to research potential job shadow placements and to conduct professional outreach to set up the job shadow. While support was still offered to make connections, especially drawing upon employers who have continued to host students, many students in the program felt confident to take ownership of the job shadow experience. Due to COVID-19 many students were not able to fully complete an in-person job shadow, so several job shadows were conducted through Zoom/Phone Informational Interviews. If a student was not able to set up a job shadow, in-person or virtually, they were asked to research internship opportunities and or career paths of their interest to present to the class. During job shadow presentations the class engaged in meaningful conversations about careers and education. They asked each other hard questions and gave sound advice on how to pursue goals. A collaborative environment was created out of these presentations that encouraged peer to peer problem solving and networking. As with previous years, we are grateful for the continued support from and in partnership with the Office of Career Services and Internships and Alumni Relations.

Program plans: All students worked with the Academic Advisor for CLA SophoMORE in completing a plan for finishing their anticipated course of study in their desired time frame. A special emphasis was given to further career and educational opportunities and building an individual schedule for success. Several students have expressed interest in adding double majors, minors, and also the accelerated master’s programs at the University.

Markers for success: This year’s cohort had a total of 56 students in the affiliated fall semester Intermediate Seminar course and 98% are expected to be retained to their junior year. There are 49 students registered for fall 2020 classes and 6 are currently in the process of either registering for fall classes or working towards alternative plans for moving forward with their college careers (as of June 30, 2020). The group maintained an average cumulative GPA of 3.22. The average number of credits earned for this year’s cohort is 60 credits; and over 80% of students in the cohort have successfully completed their Writing Proficiency requirement.

Retention and Four-Year Graduation (as of July 1, 2020)

This spring our seventh CLA First! cohort had the potential to graduate. The numbers below are in comparison to a four-year graduation rate for students (who enter as first-year students) in the College of Liberal Arts that has ranged from 12% - 26% over the past several years; a five-year graduation that has ranged from 30% - 41%, and a six-year graduation rate from 36% – 46%. The overall retention rate for first-time, full-time freshmen students into their sophomore year has ranged from 75 to 80% in the most recent years (Office of Institutional Research), so the CLA First! cohort students for 2019-2020 are being retained at a higher rate. Both retention and graduation rates are indicative that CLA First! students who remain into their sophomore year are retained and then graduate at higher averages than students not in the program.

May 2020 marked the fifth CLA SophoMORE cohort that had the potential to graduate.

In compiling data for CLA First! and the CLA SophoMORE subset, we found seven students who began with CLA First! and continue to work with CLA First! professional advisors are actively pursuing an accelerated masters (4+1) program at the University. Our program continues to support students in completing their degrees at a pace that works best for them as individuals. It is worth noting that five students from the 2014-2015 cohort are nearing the completion of their degrees and are within 15 credits of completing graduation requirements.

CLA Course Bundles

Course bundles continue to provide students in their first semester engaging combinations of courses with the aim of promoting community and starting on track. We continue to offer course bundles to students at new student orientation as another option for students. Program goals include connecting students through a cohort-model as well as providing a helpful tool for first semester registration. Efforts continued to offer programming for ALL new students in the College of Liberal Arts to attend.

Through course bundles and CLA First! we continue to promote the English Department’s Experiencing Boston course which allows students to explore Boston and connect with faculty and peers in a double course. This continued to be a popular option, with many students (over half who took the course in the fall) continuing with a version of the course in the spring that includes ENGL 102.

The fall 2020 offerings are designed to include an introductory course in CLA as well as a first year seminar course and suggested pairing of ENGL 101. New to this summer, we have a website to refer students to about course bundles which is particularly important with orientation being conducted online. We continue to work with the University Advising Center and CLA Advising and look forward to future collaboration that focuses on ways to improve the existing model of the course bundle program from the advisor perspective. Combining this feedback with student feedback and data as well as research on best practices will prove useful.

Recruitment Efforts, Initiatives and Results

Recruitment for the 2020-2021 cohort began in the fall at the general Open House and continued with a presence at the in-person Welcome Day for Accepted Students in February. Oceana Elia-Hintsa spoke about student support initiatives in the College of Liberal Arts. Student Speaker Estefany Pineda was also a featured speaker and shared her experience as a student in CLA First!

In April, Rachel Puopolo participated in a virtual college welcome session, along with a student panel featuring Hayley Bartlett, Yaa Opoku-Agyeman and Estefany Pineda. Alyssa Benalfew, UMass Boston alum who was also a part of CLA First!, spoke about her undergraduate college experience. During the virtual CLA college welcome session students were able to chat with CLA First! Peer Mentors and advisors and were also able to fill out a Pre-Enrollment Interest Form online.

Additional recruitment highlights and results are as follows:

- Students receive emails about the CLA First! opportunity immediately prior to their scheduled virtual Orientation date, and receive information about the program at their Beacon Live Orientation session.
- Mentors, along with CLA First! advising staff and Experiencing Boston faculty Virginia Karlis, hosted optional information sessions for prospective students.
- As of June 30, 2020, the CLA First! 2020-2021 cohort has more than 100 students and we anticipate filling our program capacity.
- Students attending later orientation dates will be offered the option of a CLA Course Bundle, and will be encouraged to attend Start Smart programming in their first year.
- CLA SophoMORE continues to be offered to students who have completed the CLA First! program; we featured a CLA SophoMORE student panel for prospective students as part of our Start Smart programming series. As of June 30, 2020, we are at capacity with 50 students.

Staffing Updates, Activities, and Professional Development

The 2019-2020 academic year was eventful in terms of staffing and office updates. In October, Kenyatta von Muller retired from her position as Administrative Assistant after nearly 25 years at the University, including the last 6 years with the College of Liberal Arts. CLA First! Director Rachel Puopolo went on maternity leave for the start of the spring 2020 semester. During this time, Oceana Elia-Hintsa and Lauren Haugh managed all program operations. We are grateful for the opportunity to work with two part-time graduate assistants in spring 2020 as well as CLA First! and UMass Boston Alum Aixa Tirado, who provided support on a part-time basis.

Professional development is especially important as we navigate the upcoming academic year. We are committed to learning and adapting our program to continue to support students and are investing time this summer attending webinars, virtual workshops and mini-conferences. We continue to utilize resources from the National Resource Center for The First-Year Experience and Students in Transition and have found this to be a valuable resource to connect with other professionals at many different institutions to discuss best practices in online modalities. All staff have active NACADA memberships and stay connected to this important professional community.

In the fall semester, our staff participated in a half-day workshop presented by our Office of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion focused on microaggression basics and inclusive customer service practices. Oceana Elia-Hintsa continues to serve on the Beacon Explorers committee, through Residential Life and is a hearing officer with the Administrative Review Committee within the Division of Student Affairs. Lauren Haugh serves on the First-Year Success Partners committee and is involved in the Beacon Student Success Fellowship program. Rachel Puopolo serves on the Orientation Planning Committee, and also stays connected with the Division of Student Affairs through involvement with the Office of Student Leadership and Community Development as well as being involved in the hiring process for Resident Assistants and Orientation Leaders. Rachel has also been involved with the Connected Scholars program contributing to curriculum development as well as serving as an instructor for several semesters including fall 2019.

Changes for the 2020-2021 Academic Year

CLA First!, SophoMORE, and Initiatives is committed to using our time over the remaining summer months to improve remote operations, in addition to supporting our students through providing individualized academic advising. We are also dedicating time as individuals and as an office to educating ourselves, continuous learning, and self-reflection, as we are committed to social justice and being an anti-racist office. We look forward to continued involvement and updates from the Academic Continuity Task Force, particularly as it relates to the first-year experience.

CLA First! grew to a capacity of 135 students in 2019-2020. As we do not have a full-time Administrative Assistant currently we are planning to continue with approximately the same cohort size of first-year students for fall 2020-2021.

We maintain that CLA First! and CLA Course Bundles still co-exist nicely and fill different student needs, and each may have a permanent place in the first-year student experience. Reducing the overall number of course bundles by grouping courses in theme-based bundles has streamlined registration. We will continue to assess the bundles throughout this summer orientation and will conduct assessment at the close of the semester.

The CLA SophoMORE program continues to offer two sections of the Intermediate Seminar and we are actively reviewing and re-designing our fall workshops and content to best deliver a high quality experience for students that still focuses on the exploration of academic and professional goals.

This spring helped us to fully recognize the importance of flexibility in our approaches to best supporting students. Now better equipped with various technological tools, we look to the fall with new ideas building on what did work for our program. The student voice is always an incredible resource, and we will be utilizing brief surveys as well as focus groups as we evaluate and improve our online programming. In addition, our peer mentor team continues to contribute thoughtful and practical ways to engage and improve all aspects of our student success initiatives.

College of Liberal Arts Advising Office Annual Report Academic Year 2019-2020 Prepared by Ana Frega, Dir. CLA Advising Office

The College of Liberal Arts (CLA) Advising Office provides professional proactive, holistic, developmental advising to all College of Liberal Arts students with declared majors, with the exception of students served by special programs (e.g. Student Support Services and CLA First!). Providing professional college-based advising for all declared majors in CLA is aligned with the University's Strategic Plan: "Advising is key to student success. We need to significantly increase the capacity of departments to provide advising for declared majors and recommend hiring college and department-based professional advisors to augment faculty advising in the majors." (Strategic Plan Goal 1, Objective 1) For the purposes of this report, CLA Advising caseloads will be defined as students whose primary college is CLA, who have a declared major, and who do not belong to the special groups mentioned above.

In academic year 2019-20, the CLA Advising Office had to focus on continuity of service rather than on office growth and development. Staffing limitations throughout the year, and the COVID-19 pandemic in the spring, required that the department devote all of its available resources and attention to direct student service, setting aside new initiatives, professional development, and growth programming. The impact of the University's remote operations on CLA Advising are described in a separate section below. There are also additional bullets describing separate effects of remote operations within the different sections of this report.

Staffing Reductions

- AY 19-20 began with the Voluntary Separation Incentive Program (VSIP) as a way to improve the University's financial deficit. Three CLA advisors took VSIP, two of them for comparable positions at higher salaries at other institutions. One of these advisors was also assistant director, in charge of a full student caseload and numerous administrative functions in the office. We were informed that we would only be allowed to fill two of the three VSIP vacancies.
- At the end of the fall, a fourth advisor transferred to a position in the Office of Career Services and Internships at a higher grade and for higher pay.
- As a result of these staff reductions, the office operated with three fewer advisors in Fall 2019, and four fewer advisors in Spring 2020.
- At the end of the fall semester, the office received permission to hire advisors for three of the four vacant positions. The search process was done in a timely manner, but hiring had to be delayed due to bumping, and we were only able to hire two advisors, one of them the result of the bumping.
- The office was then informed that we would not be allowed to fill the third position due to budget cuts in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.
- Finally, the advisor who was hired as a result of bumping retired shortly after training due to the University's decision to remain remote in the fall and the possibility of future layoffs. Therefore, in AY 2019-2020, our office lost three positions in addition to two positions already lost to prior years' hiring freezes.

- We have requested permission to hire a replacement for the most recent staff loss and are awaiting a response.

Impacts of Understaffing

- In previous years, when there was staff turnover, the office was able to quickly reassign students to another advisor whom the student could contact and who regularly monitored their advisees and provided individualized outreach and intervention. In AY 19-20, staffing was too low for us to continue this practice.
- Students from advisors who left remained without advisor assignment. Instead, they were able to schedule an appointment with any available advisor on our team and received departmental mass email communication about advising.
- Any student in this group who was flagged externally for follow up (by Early Alerts, the Student Referral Program, and/or a Maxient report) was contacted directly by an advisor who then continued working with that student.
- Students in the vacant advisors' caseloads had access to advisors but were not individually monitored or proactively contacted by an assigned advisor (except the students flagged by the programs in the bullet point above).
- The decision not to reassign all students after losing the fourth advisor (out of eleven) was because such large caseloads could not be effectively monitored with such a high student/advisor ratio: advisors could not provide equal service when taking on the work of four vacant positions.

Advisors were already dealing with continuously increasing caseloads (as we had lost two positions to hiring freezes and carried the workload of the third advisor who was on leave for a year before taking VSIP).

Furthermore, the impacts of recent layoffs, threats of future layoffs, VSIP, and the increased parking costs had already taken a heavy toll on advisor morale. It was necessary to preserve proactive service for as many students as possible, while acknowledging that understaffing would mean some students would not be assigned an advisor or monitored.

- In order to provide an additional point of contact for students who remained unassigned to a specific advisor, the CLA Advising Directors email was posted publicly on our website. Prior to this, it had been reserved for advisors to refer a student when the advisor was out of the office for more than one day.
- The director and two associate directors took on the additional administrative duties of the assistant director position: purchases, budget tracking, database maintenance, mass communication with students, online scheduling maintenance, communication with vendors, and others.

Professional and Office Development

- Three advisors were able to attend the National Academic Advising Conference in October 2020.
- Due to short staffing, the office focused on direct student service and outreach and we were unable to grow the office's programming and could not dedicate time or efforts to professional development.

- The following initiatives had to be suspended this past year because of understaffing: Academic Improvement and Resources Committee (AIR), monthly intra-departmental professional development meetings, our two regular annual office retreats, and the CLA Department Liaison Program.

Access to CLA Advising

We continue to offer professional, developmental advising to all declared CLA majors (Strategic Goal 1, Objective 1), despite the four vacant advisor positions. This is aligned with the Administration's goal of exerting "consistent standards/performance expectations for all professional advisors." (2018-2019 GOALS PROVOST AND VICE CHANCELLOR FOR ACADEMIC AFFAIRS)

For this, we undertook or continued the following practices:

- Each declared major was manually assigned a CLA advisor in the student information and registration system (WISER). Assigned student received advisor outreach, tracking, and monitoring. Note: The reduction in staffing prevented one group of students from being reassigned to an advisor (the alpha split assigned to the fourth vacant position, which was left vacant at the end of the fall).
- Our office uses an on-line appointment scheduling system, which sends students an immediate confirmation email, an appointment reminder email 24 hrs. in advance, and a text message reminder one hour before the appointment. The result is a decrease in missed appointments, a more efficient use of advisor time, and the opening of cancelled appointments to other students. Unlike other advising offices on campus, our system allows students to schedule advising appointments in the same day, three hours in advance.
- When operations became remote in the spring, we added an email with a Zoom link to appointments. Advisors either sent the link individually or the system generated an appointment confirmation email with a Zoom link.
- We have an on-line student intake system, which allows us to identify the students who have met with an advisor (in person or by phone), the number of advising meetings which occurred in a semester, and the times of year when traffic is the highest. We use this information to plan increased services during high-need times.
- The CLA Advising Office team fully participated in Early Alert campaigns, Student Referral Program initiatives, re-enrollment campaigns, new student enrollment campaigns, all of which were housed within Salesforce in the past academic year.
- CLA advisors continued to use WISER as a centralized note-taking system, where advisors document information about each student meeting. This ensures continuity of service when students need to see more than one CLA advisor and it allows faculty advisors to see prior notes on their advisees. This allows more seamless collaboration between professional and faculty advisors within the College. Note: CLA department chairs unanimously decided to abstain from using Salesforce for notes until they have an opportunity to discuss it with the new Chancellor next AY.

Case Management

“providing developmental advising for all students” (Strategic Plan Goal 1, Objective 1)
 College of Liberal Arts declared majors are assigned a CLA advisor according to the students’ last names; they receive consistent, personalized communication around deadlines; they are offered intensive, proactive advising; they receive outreach regarding early alerts; and their progress is monitored at the end of each semester and often throughout the semesters.

We refer to this type of student advising as case management, and its components are outlined below.

- Early and continuous outreach
 - New students: CLA advisors began outreach during summer 2019 orientations. This outreach continued throughout the 2019-2020 academic year, and into this summer for students not yet enrolled or not in good standing.
 - Continuing students receive outreach throughout the entire year, including summer and winter.
- Advisors foster students’ timely connection to the University community; they encourage and facilitate students’ early understanding of foundational requirements and relevant policies, procedures, timelines, and deadlines; they make referrals to key University services and resources; they help students enhance their educational experience through study abroad, internships, leadership, and other enrichment opportunities; they promote and connect students to the CLA Undergraduate Research Program when appropriate; and they ensure that students are connected to a faculty advisor and/or their major(s) department(s) for advising and mentoring in the discipline.
- Advisors work with students on the following developmental endeavors:
 - becoming aware of their own learning needs, styles, and pace;
 - creating short and long-term academic goals and plans;
 - increasing their understanding of institutional and faculty expectations;
 - balancing their academic load with their personal and work lives;
 - improving their time management when necessary;
 - realizing when they need additional support and taking the steps to access services and resources (e.g. Academic Support, Career Services, Counseling Center, Financial Aid);
 - enhancing their education through additional educational opportunities (e.g. study abroad, internships, undergraduate research opportunities);
 - increasing their engagement on campus (e.g. student clubs and leadership opportunities);
 - becoming intentional and purposeful in selecting courses for the general education and electives components of their liberal arts degrees, to form an individualized, cohesive whole;
 - assuming ownership over the decisions they make about their education.

Advising during COVID-19

When University operations became remote on March 12, 2020, advisors were quickly called to advise remotely. That week and the following were within the peak pre-registration period, so the CLA Advising Office immediately contacted all students who had appointments and held them via email, telephone, and instant messaging the first week. Appointments were held primarily on Zoom after that. The office assured continuity of service to all of our students and did not reschedule or cancel appointments because of the pandemic. Throughout the spring semester, advisors counseled students through changing policies, continuously developing procedures, and uncertain projections.

- Advisors resorted to Zoom as our main vehicle for advising delivery and we offered phone advising for students whose main electronic device was their phone. Our office also created Google chats for instant message advising and offered synchronous email advising to students who did not have the necessary equipment for Zoom and whose home or work environment did not lend itself to the use of audio communication.
- For many students, the pandemic increased, and frequently created, uncertainty about continuing with part or all of their education. Advisors engaged students in discussions about the impacts of continuing or interrupting their studies during remote learning and shelter-in-place guidelines.
- Advisors helped students understand their academic options and the ramifications. They helped students formulate questions and plans to engage in meaningful online dialogue with their professors around their difficulties. Advisors focused on helping students be better positioned to connect to their studies and make informed decisions about their Spring 2020 courses.
- The number of students reporting anxiety grew. Isolated students frequently reached out to advisors exclusively for human contact. Advisors often became students' main source of information and support to discuss depression and lack of motivation to engage in classes. Advisors made referrals to counseling and support resources and filed an increased number of Maxient reports about students in crisis.
- Students contacted advisors for information on emergency funds (CARES Act and others), assistance with housing, unemployment claims, and food assistance. In response, the CLA Advising Office joined University and community partners to collect and share as much information as possible on evolving policies, procedures, and resources within and outside of the University. Advisors delivered information on emergency housing, emergency monetary funds, and filing for unemployment.
- Due to the concerns about the pandemic and the evolving policy and procedure changes, the amount of email correspondence and number of appointments increased.
- Preparation and administrative time also increased as advisors set up Zoom meetings for each individual appointment, sent instructions on how to connect for their appointment (e.g. to explain that a phone call would come from a "blocked number" or how to use Zoom). Advisors had to research outstanding issues via email rather than phoning a partner office or referring students to the appropriate department on campus. Furthermore, advisors had to send students material beforehand to prepare students for an efficient meeting. Many advisors found they needed to work overtime to keep up with student demand and need.

- Advising session duration often increased because students needed time to discuss the impacts of the pandemic on their lives. In addition, advisors had to contact other University offices to find a specific person with whom to connect a student, since students could no longer visit a front desk. Finally, additional time was needed to explain and discuss the impacts of the changed policies and procedures.
- Training and onboarding of two new advisors was entirely remote and had to be carried out predominantly by the director. This delayed the new advisors' ability to begin working with students (and one of them retired shortly after training due partly to the announcement of continued remote operations).
- In order to provide sufficient supervision, support, and oversight, staff meetings were increased to two per week. The director checked in with each individual staff member at least once per week and increased her work hours to be available to all advisors regardless of their specific work hours. This was necessary not only because operations were remote, but also because advisors were dealing with more students in crisis due to the pandemic, as well as the stress it caused in their own lives.

Advising Delivery and Outreach

“connect transfer [and all] students to the university community early and often” (Strategic Plan, Goal 1, Objective 1)

- Advising Meetings

In AY 2019-2020 (September 3, 2019 - June 1, 2020), the CLA Advising Office conducted 7,063 advising meetings with 3,258 individual students. The total number of meetings was consistent with the prior year, but we served almost 500 fewer individual students. This may be due to multiple factors: first, we had three fewer advisors in the fall and four fewer in the spring to do individualized outreach (part of what brings students to see us); secondly, the crises of AY 19-20 (financial in the fall and the pandemic in the spring) led more students to seek repeat contact with their advisors. It is important to note that remaining advisors managed to see approximately the same number of appointments overall. As mentioned in an earlier section, this required relinquishing almost all other professional activities.

Academic Year	Advising Meetings	Students Seen
2019-2020	7,063	3,258
2018-2019	7,091	3,730
2017-2018	6,241	2,988

- Drop-ins

The CLA Advising Office offered increased availability to students by holding drop-ins at high-need times. This year, we coordinated with the Labor Resource center to use their student lounge as a waiting area, which allowed us to keep better track of students who were served.

- Add-Drop (first week of classes): AY 19-20 was the first academic year that our office was located on one floor, which allowed all advisors to be on drop-in duty the first week of the fall and spring semesters. In past semesters, half the staff did drop-ins, while the other half held appointments because we were on different floors. When we compare Fall 2018 to Fall 2019, and Spring 2019 to Spring 2020, it is clear we were able to serve more students at critical times, even with fewer advisors. Our office proximity and location impact service delivery. We hope for clearer signage and, eventually, reception to provide better and more service.

Semester	Year	Drop-ins	Appointments	Total	Staff
Spring	2020	562	0	562	7 advisors
Fall	2019	579	4	583	8 advisors
Spring	2019	327	171	498	9 advisors
Fall	2018	381	214	695	11 advisors
Spring	2018	321	176	497	10 advisors
Fall	2017	338	149	487	10 advisors

- Pass-Fail/Withdrawal: In Fall 2019, we offered drop-ins the week leading up to the Pass-Fail and Withdrawal deadline. In Spring 2020, that deadline was moved to coincide with the last day of classes due to the effects of the pandemic. Our office offered remote drop-ins the day before and the day of the deadline.

Semester	Drop-ins	Appts	Advising Meetings
Spring 2020	82	56	138
Fall 2019	197	147	344
Spring 2019	58	61	119

Note: In both Spring 2019 and Spring 2020, we held two days of drop-ins before and on the P/F/W deadline, and we served more students when operating remotely. It is possible that more students needed to make use of these options due to the pandemic. Nevertheless, the office was operating with three fewer advisors and entirely remotely, and still managed to serve more students.

- Residence Halls

In order to bring advising to students, our office participated in a multi-college evening drop-in advising event in the residence halls in the fall once registration was open to all students. The plan was to repeat it in the spring, but operations became remote before that could happen.

- Mass Email Outreach

The CLA Advising office emailed all CLA declared majors (approximately 3,500 students) alerting about add-drop, withdrawal/pass-fail, registration appointments, and the early registration deadline in fall and spring.

- Invitation to Advising

CLA advisors emailed their individual caseloads at the beginning of each semester to introduce themselves, welcome new students, offer support, and encourage registration advising early each semester.

- Events

CLA Advising collaborated with partner departments in recruitment, retention, and student success events, namely Open Houses, Welcome Days, Transfer Open Houses, and 100 Days to Graduation. All Spring 2020 events, except Welcome Day I, were remote.

- Group Advising

Our office joined partner offices in presenting workshops and doing group advising in First Year Seminars, Critical Reading and Writing classes, and at ASAP (financial aid appeal) workshops, as well as at New Student Advising and Registration (NSAR).

Academic Improvement (Probation) Advising

As part of our case management advising programming, each CLA advisor did proactive, personalized outreach to students whose GPAs were below 2.0 (alert, probation or extended probation). These students were strongly encouraged (by our office and by Undergraduate Studies) to meet with their assigned advisor to create an academic improvement plan.

- Academic Improvement Plans

Students review academic policies and procedures for students who are not in good academic standing, get connected to support resources, learn how to use the GPA calculator, reflect on what led to their standing, and devise steps and strategies—both in and out of school—for improving their GPAs and for eventual graduation.

- Readmitted Students

For the second year in a row, the CLA Advising Office advised all students readmitted after suspension or dismissal (a role formerly housed in the Office of Undergraduate Studies), placed and released specialized holds (Standards and Credits and Undergraduate Studies holds), enforced that this readmitted population registered for two courses in their first semester (per Standards and Credits regulations), and monitored that they achieved “extended probation” status (2.3 term GPA in six graded credits).

- Standards and Credits

The CLA Advising Office continued to sit on the Committee for Standards and Credits, which reviews suspended and dismissed students’ appeals for readmission. This ensures that the committee can be made aware of applicants’ relevant advising history to help in its decision. It also allows readmission appeals to be accepted and reviewed by the committee after the semester ends, which is often when students are ready to appeal to resume their studies. Finally, this participation allows CLA advisors to better guide students through the appeal and possible reinstatement process:

- Advisors are now aware of the evidence of readiness the committee needs to see, they can discuss individual cases with representatives of the Committee, and they can better support students in reflecting on what they need to demonstrate in their appeal.
- When a student is readmitted, CLA advisors now have access to the student’s appeal packet, which helps advisors determine the assistance needed and remind the student of the commitments they made in their readmission appeal.
- Similarly, when an appeal is denied, the advisor has information to help the student determine next steps, including preparing a new appeal for the following semester.

Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP) Advising

“[W]e must provide financial aid at a level that maintains our firm commitment to access and affordability,” (Goal 4)

The office of CLA Advising continued to collaborate with the office of Financial Aid to try to ensure continued financial aid for those students who were not meeting the federal government’s definition of “satisfactory academic progress” (SAP) and who had to appeal to try to regain aid.

- SAP plans

CLA advisors created SAP plans for students who did not meet government guidelines but could demonstrate extenuating circumstances and showed a measure of progress toward graduation. The Office of Financial Aid used these plans to determine whether these students could continue to receive aid.

- ASAP workshops
CLA advisors presented Achieving Satisfactory Academic Progress (ASAP) workshops throughout the year (including winter and summer terms). Online versions of this workshop were implemented prior to remote University operations, and our office was already presenting online. We continued to do so throughout the spring and summer.
- Students who do not meet the federal government’s criteria for SAP often also struggle with the University’s requirements for academic good standing. Therefore, CLA advisors implemented developmental and holistic academic improvement (probation) advising at the same time that they counseled students on regaining SAP for financial aid purposes.

International Student Advising

“We expand our spheres of engagement by applying new knowledge to urban situations around the world and setting our sights on academic partnerships worldwide.” (Goal 2)

- International students receive the advising services already explained. In addition, the CLA Advising Office collaborated with the Office of International Students and Scholar Services (ISSS) to complete the documents international students are required to submit when requesting program extensions, reduced course loads, and Optional Practical Training after graduation. This resulted in increased thoroughness and promptness in the submission of these forms; it increased students’ understanding of the academic repercussions of their appeals; and it allowed students to make these appeals throughout the entire calendar year (as CLA Advising is open year-round). Finally, it eliminated what faculty advisors had expressed was a responsibility outside the scope of faculty advising.
- Due to the pandemic, re-enrollment of international students in Fall 2020 is low at the writing of this report. The CLA Advising Office has been collaborating with the Office of the Provost, the Vice Chancellor of Enrollment Management, and leadership in other colleges to secure vacancies in classes that could benefit international students who are abroad due to the pandemic, as well as those who are still in the country. CLA Advising will participate in offering off-hour advising access to students in different time zones.

Assessment

We are in our third year of surveying the learning outcomes of advising appointments. A brief survey is emailed to each student after an advising appointment during pre-registration and early registration. The survey is anonymous and not attached to a particular advisor’s name, but students can volunteer the advisor’s name at the end if they wish. The majority of the survey was created in conjunction with all other University advising offices for institutional consistency. A few questions are specific to our office.

- Purpose
Our Fall19 goals were to compare the reasons that brought students to advising with the understandings that they gained, to assess the effects of advising on students’ intended next steps, and to measure students’ perception of their advising interactions. The Spring 2020 survey coincided with University operations becoming remote due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Therefore, two multiple choice questions were added regarding students' experience with remote advising and we removed the question asking students "What, if anything, will you do (or do differently) as a result of your advising meeting?"

- Timeline

Approximately eight to nine weeks each semester so as to include students who seek advising early to prepare for registration, and those who meet with advisors after early alerts are sent and registration is well under way. Students who get advising early often have a greater understanding of requirements, regulations, and resources, and are better positioned to focus on school than students who delay advising and registration (often because of external responsibilities). Our survey period allows us to capture a broad representation of our student population, allowing us to better evaluate and adjust our practice to the needs of all our students.

- Response Rates

Semester	Response Rate	Student Replies	Surveys Sent
Fall 19	13.2%	220	1,658
Spring 2020	8.9%	165	1,849
Fall 18	17.3%	440	2,530
Spring 19	13%	264	1,971
Fall 17	17%	228	1,334
Spring 18	15.5% (13.5% completed)	215	1,362

Below, are the highlights of each survey's results:

Fall 2019 Survey

- Gains from Advising (students could choose more than one)

The top choices are below, with the most frequent on top.

- I gained a clearer understanding of my options.
- I have a clearer understanding of my degree audit and graduation requirements.
- I enrolled in classes or added them to my shopping cart. (The survey opened before registration started.)
- I set or refined goals.

- Learning Outcomes

These were measured by whether students left advising knowing next steps, planning to do something differently, and/or whether they learned something they did not expect.

- Over 98% reported that they knew next steps to take as a result of their advising appointment.
- 22% of students said they would do something differently as a result of their advising appointment.
- 32% of respondents replied they learned something they were not expecting in their advising meeting.

- Satisfaction

This was gauged by whether students stated they would choose to seek advising from our office again.

- Over 95% stated that they would continue to seek assistance from CLA Advising, based on their advising interaction.
- Several students mentioned the difficulty of finding their advisor's office and wanting longer appointments. This speaks to the need for better signage and more staff.
- Two students mentioned the need to have their appointments rescheduled, which may have been a result of low staffing.

AY 19-20 Survey Conclusions

- The fall semester reflected the same top advising gains as previous years, namely understanding options and degree requirements, together with course registration. In contrast, Spring 2020 brought a focus on refining and setting goals. During the pandemic, students questioned their prior and future academic goals. Anecdotally, CLA advisors also reported a marked increase in conversations about what students wanted to achieve in the short and long term with their studies and with their lives.

Advisors were in the privileged position of hearing students' doubts, concerns, and fears, supporting students through the uncertainty of the spring semester and summer and fall enrollment, and helping advisees consider their shifting options to make decisions. Some students also shared that their conversations with advisors were their only direct, one-on-one connection with another person, let alone a University member.

- Students often seek only transactional advising (information delivery, hold removal, and course registration), which they believe completes their advising needs. However, holistic advising invites students to reflect on decisions and choices they are continually making and to take active steps toward continued or improved success and enrichment of their education. The overwhelming percentage of responses indicating that students knew they needed to take next steps—many naming which ones—is an indicator of CLA Advising’s positive impact on students’ learning process.
- Many students commented that they realized they had been missing information (i.e. students don’t know what they don’t know). It is in conversations with their CLA advisors that students often realize they need support in understanding their options and making deliberate, informed decisions; that they benefit from assisted reflection about their learning needs; and/or that they have unaddressed topics which impact their academic success. This is substantiated by the number of students who replied that they learned something unexpected and/or would modify a behavior as a result of advising, confirming that CLA advisors are effectively guiding students to discover hidden obstacles and reflect on ways to increase their success and/or enhance their education.
- While the office locations and signage are outside our department’s control, we agree that our scattered offices and the lack of reception area/person present a problem for students. We have developed ways to deliver clear directions to students: appointment confirmation emails contain directions to the advisor’s office, our website links each advisor’s name to directions, and we have posted our own signs throughout our halls. We are hopeful that the University will create official signage in our area once we return to campus.
- The need for remote advising presented an opportunity to pilot online advising. While the number of students who completed the survey is small, the large majority said they would choose remote advising again. In addition, the number of students we served in the spring is greater than in any preceding spring—with far fewer advisors. In conclusion, we will likely continue to offer remote advising options when the University returns to campus.
- Below, are examples of what students report to have learned and gained from CLA Advising. These quotes illustrate how professional advising addresses developmental and holistic student needs, and how it leads to students’ persistence, academic success, educational enrichment, and more timely graduation:
 - I am happy with my experience. I especially really enjoy speaking with my advisor because he is very helpful and gives students a sense of comfort. I hope that everyone is able to have that same experience with their advisors also.
 - I learned that there are many specific departments on campus that can help with numerous problems that I wasn’t aware of prior to my meeting
 - I learned about internships within the major, oddly enough.
 - I did not expect it to be as helpful as it was, abut I got a lot out of it.
 - [I learned] that I can stick with my major and it has more opportunities than I thought.
 - The alternative option on how to fulfill the Writing Proficiency requirement.
 - She gave really good advice on how to fill a hole in my schedule next semester.
 - I have more options than I thought previously.
 - [My advisor] was sensitive to my experiences with my employment due to COVID-19.

- [My advisor] is great at making me feel like I can contact her any time even though she has so many other students
- Didn't expect to talk about depression, but she helped ease my mind!
- His compassion about dealing with recent corona virus that is affecting myself and my family.
- I learned that my GPA doesn't reflect the person I am academically. I can and will do better.
- [I learned] I could enroll in Honors College without having to take burden of extra courses in spite of my major.
- Major and minor decisions, writing proficiency, as well as how to reach out for financial aid and Summer 2020 term planning and costs.
- Talked about classes needed but the option of doing an internship rather than an honors seminar.

New Student Advising and Registration (NSAR)

“the steps needed to ensure that they [newly admitted students] can be successful.” (President Caret, Goal 1, Objective 1)

Our office continues its collaboration with the University Advising Center (UAC) in designing, delivering, and assessing the CLA New Student Advising and Registration (NSAR) sessions offered during orientation for new students, both freshmen and transfers. We ensure consistency of service and accessibility to advising among declared and undecided students.

- Incoming First-Year Students

In Spring 2020, we had to transform our in-person, computer lab, group NSAR presentations into a remote presentation followed by individual Zoom appointments. This meant adhering to the following requirements:

- Ensuring that the presentation lasted the specific time stipulated by New Student Programs, so that students could be broken out into college-specific Zoom rooms and then reintegrated with the University-wide group at the precise time New Student Programs needed.
- Covering material that included student populations advised by our office (declared majors), by the University Advising Center, and by the learning community CLA First! (special program).
- Ensuring accessibility through images and subtitling as well as audio.
- Working with IT to publish the presentation online to allow students who missed orientation to view it on their own.
- Creating a system to individually register and track all the students after they attended orientation.

To this purpose, our office created and recorded a Power Point video, worked with the IT department to have it subtitled, edited, and then posted to a sharable online link. We pre-scheduled individual Zoom registration appointments with each new first-year student, established a notification system that sent each student a separate Zoom link, together with preparation material, and collaborated with the University Advising Center in order to ensure consistency and seamlessness in the advising and registration experience across both offices.

When the CLA learning community had difficulty recruiting students remotely, our office modified our presentation to incorporate time for that program to recruit during the CLA presentation. In addition, we promoted the learning community during appointments with new first-year students, enrolled interested students in the CLA First! cohort classes during our appointments, and then connected them with their future advisors. This was done in an attempt to secure the largest incoming class possible through prompt enrollments without obstacles for students.

Our office presented for 50 minutes at five orientation sessions in June, and two in July and August.

- Incoming Transfer Students
Prior to the start of the Spring 2020 term, the Office of Student Affairs launched the online orientation project, Beacon Preview, to largely replace in-person orientation for transfer students. The CLA Advising Office was named as a stakeholder and worked on creating the CLA portion of the project throughout the spring semester. When operations became remote, Beacon Preview became the only orientation programming transfer students would receive.
 - For the first time, transfer students did not receive a synchronous group presentation on degree requirements and registration (neither in-person nor remote).
 - To ensure students had information on these topics, our office created an advising invitation email linked to online material on degree requirements and registration. This also allowed students to prepare for their individual advising and registration sessions.
 - Our office invited new transfer students who matriculated early to schedule advising appointments in May, prior to first-year orientations.
 - All other new transfer students were invited to an individual advising and registration appointment as soon as they watched the Beacon Preview online orientation video.

Through these measures, each new student was connected to an individual advisor with whom to work on registration and to later contact if they needed to make changes during this unstable time. This practice is aligned with the University's goal "to build a new system and culture that places and keeps students on track, integrates their academic and social experiences, and connects them to networks from the start." (Strategic Plan, Goal 1, Objective 1)

Advising Directors Committee

The CLA Advising Office participated all year in weekly meetings (bi-weekly in spring) and collaborations with all advising directors in the Advising Directors Committee. The committee worked on the following endeavors:

- Collaborations and consistency in new-student advising plans: this was particularly important in the creation of remote NSARs.
- Coordination of advising events across colleges.
- Immediate information sharing, particularly as new policies and procedures evolved during Spring 2020.
- Greater consistency in advising service among colleges.

- Systematic procedures to ensure a smooth transition in advising when students do inter-college transfers (this involved collaborations with Undergraduate Admissions).
- Coordinated student enrollment tracking systems.

Faculty Advising: Support and Collaboration

“We need to significantly increase the capacity of departments to provide advising for declared majors.” (Goal 1, Objective 1)

The College of Liberal Arts recognizes that both faculty and professional advisors are key to student success because their combined areas of expertise result in a truly holistic approach to academic advising. The assignment of both a CLA advisor and a faculty advisor to each of our students, and collaboration between the two, are one of the foundations of the College’s student success initiatives. Faculty advisors provide in-semester guidance within their disciplines and mentor students on undergraduate to post-graduate planning, and CLA advisors offer year-round developmental advising, focused on helping students create academic plans, complete general education requirements, augment their liberal arts education with deliberate course selection, balance life circumstances with academic goals, utilize University support resources, and enhance their education with co-curricular enrichment opportunities (leadership development, study abroad, internships, undergraduate research, etc.).

- Support for Faculty Advising

The CLA Advising Office provides support, consultation, and training to enhance faculty advising “to augment faculty advising in the majors” (Goal 1, Objective 1):

- All CLA advisors served as consultants for faculty advisors in CLA: the number of faculty advisors who consulted and collaborated with CLA advisors on individual student cases continued to increase.
- The Director of CLA Advising continued to serve as consultant for all faculty advising, particularly chairs, in the College throughout the year.

- Faculty Advising Committee

This ad-hoc committee is chaired by the CLA Advising Director and integrated by at least one member of each CLA undergraduate department. (Unfortunately, some departments were unable to send a representative this past year.) It meets once a month during the fall and spring semesters, to work toward a greater culture of student success in faculty advising and, thereby, meet “the need to build a new system and culture that places and keeps students on track, integrates their academic and social experiences, and connects them to networks from the start.” (Goal 1, Objective 1)

The Committee’s goals are the following:

- To discuss policy that affects student success in CLA.
- To serve as a group of point persons and disseminators of advising-related information in the academic departments.
- To raise issues of concern for faculty advising.
- To consider best practices in faculty and professional advising collaborations.
- To engage in professional development around advising issues (e.g. study abroad, student life concerns, and career advising).
- To bring to the CLA Dean’s attention issues that faculty advisors consider need to be addressed by the Administration.

- Mellon Grant courses

The CLA Advising Office was invited to collaborate with the Mellon Grant Advisory Board to support Humanities students toward career paths that build on their studies and to collaborate on promoting Humanities courses. Advisors shared feedback from students regarding Humanities courses, discussed how advisors guide students in their selections, suggested ways to better promote the Mellon Grant courses to students, and created plans to promote these courses in their advising sessions.

Development Plans for AY 2020-2021

Next year, most of our goals are based on the hopes of attaining reasonable staffing levels and resuming much of what we had previously achieved.

- Ensure all students are assigned to a CLA advisor.
- Recover the assistant director position.
- Resume intra-departmental professional development.
- Resume professional development through semester retreats with outside presenters.
- Resume the work of the AIR Committee.
- Resume the Department Liaison Program.
- Develop a social media presence for the office.
- Foster early connections between new students in one same major through group meetings during the summer.

APPENDIX 3

Office of Career Services and Internships Annual Report for CLA

2019-2020 Highlights:

The Office of Career Services and Internships (OCSI) in collaboration with the College of Liberal Arts continued to support the career development of students and alumni through individual career appointments and innovative career programming. In the middle of the semester, the career specialists moved to remote career advising, teaching, and student engagement due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

In support of the College of Liberal Arts' academic mission, the CLA Career Specialists, along with other members of the Career Services team, presented 66 classroom presentations reaching approximately 1,251 students. The CLA Career Specialists provided (1) workshop to the doctoral graduate students in the Sociology on careers outside faculty appointments. Additionally, CLA students were able to participate in career programs like the Career Expo, Career Symposium, Pre-Law Workshops, CLA First! and SophoMORE workshops. Unfortunately, the Etiquette Dinner, a student favorite event, was cancelled due to the pandemic. The CLA Career Specialists provided 23 special events and workshops, outside of the classroom, to approximately 486 students.

The CLA Career Services Specialists conducted over 1,251 career appointments and drop-ins with students and alumni during the 2019-2020 academic year.

- During the 2019-2020 academic year, the Office of Career Services and Internships (OCSI), in collaboration with the College of Liberal Arts and University Advancement, presented the 10th annual Career Symposium. Fourteen CLA alumni returned to campus to speak with 75 students about their career paths and how they leveraged their liberal arts degree when building their career. Alumni were encouraged to share information on available jobs, internships, and volunteer opportunities with their organizations. Many alumni shared current opportunities with students, so students could see the variety of ways they could get involved and build their resumes as they work towards their future career goals. The Career Symposium was a great learning and networking opportunity for CLA students.
- The Office of Career Services and Internships, in collaboration with the College of Liberal Arts, through the Mellon grant, offered the very first Careers in Humanities course during the 2019-2020 academic year. This course was offered as part of the High-Impact Humanities curriculum, for one credit.
 - During the fall 2019 semester the Careers in Humanities course was co-caught by the Career Specialists for the College of Liberal Arts (CSCLAs). During the spring 2020 semester each CSCLA had an individual section, one online and one originally in-person, before the COVID-19 pandemic moved this section online. In total, 55 students have finished this course since fall 2019. Student feedback for the course has been consistently positive.
 - During the fall 2019 semester, the Career Specialists for the College of Liberal Arts, along with the Director of Career Services, spoke with the Mellon Faculty Advisory Board about the Careers in Humanities course and its connection to the Mellon Career Cohort Initiative. The incorporation of the eight NACE career competencies into CLA Mellon courses was discussed as well as the Careers in Humanities course curriculum.
 - During the spring 2020 semester, the Career Specialists for the College of Liberal Arts spoke to faculty attending the High Impact Humanities Career Cohort Grants Workshop, highlighting the valuable career resources faculty can share with students during their academic career, including Handshake, as well as the course content in the Careers in Humanities Course. Faculty requested a Handshake Scavenger Hunt handout to share with their students, after learning about this resource during the meeting.

- In both meetings, the Career Specialists for the College of Liberal Arts encouraged faculty to include information on Career Services and internships in their syllabus, which was well received.
- There was continued involvement in SophoMORE, including facilitating workshops regarding resumes, informational interviews, preparing for the Career Expo, and cover letters. Career Specialists for CLA also supported the CLA First! program, offering a brand new workshop, Build Your Resume of the Future, providing first-year students with a foundation to strategically plan for ways to engage, both at UMass Boston and beyond to build a strong resume as they create a path to their future career.
- The Office of Career Services and Internships continues to have a support system in place to help any CLA student who wants an internship understand how to proactively find and secure one. Additionally, the Manager of University Internships has helped build special partnerships with local employers and CLA students have the opportunity to apply for those internships. Applicable partnership internships include the City of Boston, Edward M. Kennedy Institute, Havas Media, Behavioral Health Service Corps, Liberty Mutual, Justice Bridge Legal Center, Mass State House-Governor's Office, and Commercial Real Estate Success Training (CREST).
- In collaboration between the Manager of University Internships and the Career Specialists for CLA, an electronic document is continually maintained with the appropriate personnel and department chairs in CLA departments for students to contact in regard to obtaining academic credit for internship opportunities.
- The Office of Career Services and Internships began a new partnership pipeline for UMass Boston graduating seniors with Sun Life Financial for their New Graduate Gig Experience Program. In total, Sun Life hired 5 UMass Boston students, with their first hire being a College of Liberal Arts student who studied Economics and Asian American Studies.
- This past academic year, many employers, including the Aspire Health Alliance, Massachusetts State Police, Massachusetts General Hospital, Massachusetts Trial Court, Museum of Fine Arts Boston, Pine Street Inn, Sun Life, Peace Corps, Sherwin Williams, The U.S. Coast guard, Vermont Police, and Boston Police Department, were on campus to recruit students for opportunities. In the spring of 2020 semester close to 100 employers attended the Career Expo. Prior to the COVID-19 pandemic outbreak, over 100 employer expressed interest in attending the Career Expo, but the number changed as the pandemic started to grow. Throughout the academic year, the Career Specialists for CLA actively promoted employer sessions as well as internship and job opportunities to students through individual appointments, emails, and during classroom presentations as applicable.
- Due the effects of COVID-19, the end of semester career programming was disrupted; however, the Office of Career Services and Internships developed a new summer series for students and recent graduates titled Jumpstart Your Career! In total, 469 students and recent graduates attended 7 workshops, an alumni panel, and the virtual career networking event.
- Due to continued relationship with UMass Boston alums and partnership with the City of Boston, two students have worked with the CSCLA to apply and gain two fellowship positions. One of the fellows graduating in December has been offered an Interim Director position.
- We have also used social media to promote new CLA graduates through the Hire a Beacon and Celebrate a Beacon Campaign as well as other programming.
- CLA collaborated with the Office of Career Services and Internships (OCSI) and the University Advising Center (UAC) to continue to build a pre-law advising program with a dedicated OCSI career specialist and dedicated UAC advisor. Highlights from the 2019-2020 academic year include:

- A new program, focused on the versatility of a law degree, was offered to students through a collaboration with New York Law School. This program originally ran at the Northeast Association of Pre-Law Advisors (NAPLA) conference in June and was brought to UMass Boston as a special program in the fall.
 - Pre-Law advisors continued to speak with students, both prospective students, accepted students, and current students, who are interested in the 3+3 program between UMass Boston and the University of Massachusetts School of Law. One student is currently on track to formally apply to this program, through UMass Law, by the end of June 2020.
 - An average of 66 students were active on the Pre-Law listserv during the 2019-2020 academic year. These students received 10 tailored emails regarding events, resources, internships, and scholarship opportunities. A conscious effort was given to synthesize information into less email blasts in order to hone in on the most pertinent information for students.
 - Pre-Law students continued to participate in experiential learning opportunities. Justice Bridge Legal Center's Volunteer Legal Intern position continues to be a popular choice amongst pre-law students, with our 3+3 prospective student securing one of the few undergraduate summer internships available this summer, due to the pandemic, with Justice Bridge. During the 2019-2020 academic year 17 students (including one UMB alumni) did an internship with Justice Bridge, a 375% increase for this academic year.
 - The Pre-Law Advisors participated in multiple conversations with Dr. Philip Kretsedemas, Associate Professor of Sociology, to provide ideas and information for the pre-law related grant he is applying to through the AccessLex Foundation's Diversity Pipeline program.
 - Based on the Law School Admission Council reports, 33 UMass Boston students/alumni matriculated into law school this past academic year, a 32% increase.
 - Students/alumni matriculated into the following institutions: Suffolk University Law School, New England Law | Boston, Northeastern University School of Law, UConn School of Law, Benjamin N Cardozo School of Law, Brooklyn Law School, Saint Louis University School of Law, Stetson University College of Law, Texas Southern University, The University of Texas School of Law, University of Hawai'i at Manoa | WM Richardson Law, and University of Minnesota Law School.
 - For the coming academic year, currently 37 UMass Boston students and alumni applied for admission to 216 law schools for fall 2020.
- Career Specialists for the College of Liberal Arts continued to provide a variety of classroom presentations for CLA students, including offering the Don't Cancel That Class program for faculty, when missing a class might be unavoidable, such as when attending a conference. In total, 10 workshops were offered through the Don't Cancel That Class program reaching 191 students.
 - The Career Specialists for College of Liberal Arts planned and implemented the Federal Careers Forum. This forum provided students an opportunity to learn about careers, internships, and jobs available with the federal government. Students had an opportunity to network with 7 federal agencies, including the Department of State, Greater Boston Federal Executive Board, U.S. Department of Homeland Security (TSA), United States Coast Guard, Federal Emergency Management Agency, US Forest Service, and National Oceanic & Atmospheric Administration Fisheries. These panelists shared with students' information on their agencies, including what students could do during their time at UMass Boston to become competitive for positions. In total, 61 students attended this event, a 74.29% increase over the fall 2018 attendance.
 - CLA students took advantage of the Beacon Student Success Fellowship which provides financial support to undergraduate and graduate students engaging in summer experiential learning activities such as unpaid or underpaid internships, volunteer work, a faculty-supervised research project, study abroad, participation in an academic symposium, travel related to academic projects and study, and other forms of experiential learning. For the summer of 2020, 31% of the 39 students awarded Beacon Student Success Fellowships were from the College of Liberal Arts. In total 47% of students who have received this fellowship, since 2014, have been CLA students.
